A Day in the Life of a 1950s Housewife - LetterPile

I found an old book from 1954 that my grandmother actually used in her 1950's housewife days. It is called "Pictoral Medical Guide", and was published in 1954 with writings by 42 specialists at the time. It's quite interesting and sometimes funny to see the differences in the expectations of women in that time compared to now. Ready to be a wife?

Post-feminist revolution, 1950's housewives carry a certain amount of hip kudos. Now that we have equality (or a facsimile thereof) we don't have to be on the defensive anymore. We can wear a stiff, full skirt, vintage aprons, masses of lipstick, absurd hair and play at having afternoon teas and being as ultra-feminine and retro as we want.

A 1950's Wife's Guide: 1950's Wife Guide Rules

A 1950's homemaker would never have gone to bed with that kind of mess looming in the background. To be fair, the cleaning experiment didn't start on Sunday, but it would have made things a lot simpler to begin this journey without a game of catch-up.

The "Good Wife's Guide" is a magazine article rumored to have been published in the May 13, 1955 issue of Housekeeping Monthly, describing how a good wife should act, containing material that reflects a very different role assignment from contemporary American society. The article states: Have dinner ready. Plan ahead, even the night before, to have a delicious meal ready, on time for his return.

How the 1950's Housewife Was Expected to Behave in the

For a woman, were the 1950s and 1960s the best of times or the worst of times? The life of the average married woman in the 1950s and 60s was very different from that of today's woman. This was the age of respectability and conformity. Very few women worked after getting married; they stayed at home to raise the children and keep house.

Bing: 1950 Housewife Guide

Why did so many white, suburban stay-at-home moms in the 1940s through '60s struggle with neurosis, anxiety, or depression? Since Betty Friedan wrote The Feminine Mystique, a standard answer has been boredom and a sense of meaninglessness.. Drawing from interviews with 35 British women who were “housewives” in the post-war years, about half of whom reported anxiety or depression, Ali

1950 Housewife Guide

The 1950's housework schedule is written for a 50's housewife who's children are of school age. I'm not suggesting we all give up work and chain ourselves to the kitchen sink. I was just wondering if there was anything homemakers of the fifties did then, that we don't do so well today.

The 1950s Housewife - Historic UK

The 1950's housewife is one who loved floral aprons, kept a spotless house and baked all day. One who served dinner to hubby as he walked through the door and single handily raised the kids while looking like a glamour puss. Well, that is, well ...a crock of sh*t.
