the arab region continues to be among the most challenging in the world for the progress of women s rights equality remains elusive for women and vulnerable groups in the region due to traditional patriarchal cultures protracted crises lack of religious freedom discriminatory legal frameworks and chronic insecurity the strongest indicator of peace in any country is in its treatment of women but the story of women s rights in the region is one of patchy progress and major regress today women are experiencing a massive backlash against their rights and fundamental freedoms and yet there is hope feminists particularly young feminists from the arab region fight tirelessly for their rights and are leading movements around the region pushing for change this book looks at the last 50 years of arab in recent years the geopolitical rivalry between saudi arabia and iran has dominated the headlines many have charted the polarisation between a saudi led sunni camp and an iranian led shia one assuming that a predominantly shia state like iraq would automatically ally with iran in this compelling account katherine harvey tells a different story iraq's alignment with iran was not a foregone conclusion rather saudi efforts to undermine iran have paradoxically empowered it harvey investigates why the saudis refused to engage with iraq's post 2003 shia led government despite continual outreach by iraq's new leaders and considerable pressure from the united states she finds that certain deeply ingrained assumptions predisposed saudi leaders to see a shia led iraq as naturally beholden to iran the view that iran is inherently expansionist and the belief that arab shia tend to be loyal to it this outlook was simplistic even downright inaccurate and in refusing to engage the saudis created a self fulfilling prophecy as harvey demonstrates members of iraq's new government initially sought to establish a positive relationship with saudi arabia and to pursue a course independent from iran but isolated and rejected by saudi king abdullah iraq ultimately had nowhere else to turn this multi author report edited by Álvaro de vasconcelos was conceived as a response to the recent uprisings in tunisia and in egypt and the democratic wave that has struck the arab world clearly these democratic uprisings call for a radical shift in the way in which euro mediterranean relations are formulated and conducted the report seeks to examine the significance of these events in this context the first part of the report focuses on individual countries in the region in the following sequence morocco algeria tunisia libya egypt palestine jordan lebanon and syria the second part of the report consists of three chapters addressing the question of human rights and the rule of law in the region the social and economic aspects of the democratic transition process and the european neighbourhood policy the events of the arab spring presented a dramatic reconstitution of politics and the public sphere through their aesthetic and performative uses of public space mass demonstrations have become a new global political form grounded in the localization of globalizing processes institutions and relationships this volume delves beneath the seemingly chaotic nature of events to explore the structural dynamics underpinning popular resistance and their support or suppression it moves beyond what has usually been defined as arab spring nations to include critical views on bahrain the palestinian territories and turkey the research and analysis presented explores not just the immediate protests but also the historical realization appropriation and even institutionalization of these critical voices as well as the role of international criminal law and legal exceptionalism in authorizing humanitarian interventions above all it questions whether the revolutions have since been hijacked and the broad popular uprisings already overrun suppressed or usurped by the upper classes the search for détente offers a unique perspective on the latest effort to resolve the israeli palestinian dispute by setting the peace talks within the context of political events in the middle east and beyond neville teller offers an authoritative overview on why the israel palestine situation remains so intractable beginning in the spring of 2012 against the background of the still raging arab spring the search for détente provides the context within which us secretary of state john kerry began his efforts to bring the two sides to the negotiating table it records the optimism at the start of the process when all agreed that nine months would be sufficient to resolve the issues and how cold reality led to kerry shifting the goalposts to achieve just a framework agreement which might or might not allow the parties to go on talking from the end of 2012 until the formal end to the discussions in april 2014 events crowded thick and fast in the middle east and beyond from israel s incursion into gaza to end hamas s indiscriminate rocket attacks on civilians the start of the syrian civil war and assad s use of chemical weapons to the overthrow of egypt s president morsi teller also looks at russia s growing influence in averting a us military strike on syria in brokering discussions on iran s nuclear programme and in invading ukraine and annexing crimea these events and others provide an insightful perspective on this latest effort to bring a resolution to the israel palestine conflict just peace has been much talked about in everyday life but it is less well researched by academics the rationale of this book is therefore to probe what constitutes a just peace both conceptually within the field of peacebuilding and empirically in the context of the eu as a peacebuilder in the israeli palestinian conflict the eu has used the term just peace in many of its most important declarations on the israeli palestinian conflict throughout the years defining a just peace is about these declaratory efforts by the eu to articulate a common formula of a just peace in the conflict securing and building a just peace are about the eu s role in implementing this formula for a just peace in the conflict through the creation of a palestinian state as the eu enters its fifth decade of involvement in the conflict there can be little doubt that in common with the rest of the international community it has failed in its efforts to establish a just peace between israelis and palestinians while this is an inescapable overall conclusion from four decades of ec eu peacebuilding in the conflict it is at the same time possible to draw a number of other conclusions from this book most importantly it argues that the eu is a major legitimizing power in the conflict and that it has kept the prospects of a two state solution alive through its support for the palestinian statebuilding process
