much of the period 1661 1815 appeared to be the age of france france was the greatest power in western europe in the late seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and louis xiv and napoleon seemed to dominate their periods yet when louis xiv died in 1715 and again after napoleon's attempt to resume power was defeated at waterloo a century later france appeared as a waning power this failure in europe was matched on the world scale france was overtaken by britain in the struggle for maritime predominance and ended the period with her empire in ruins from louis xiv to napoleon is a scholarly yet accessible account which considers why france was not more successful and throws light on french history international relations warfare and the rise and fall of french power the crisis threatens the welfare of about 160 million people in the europe and central asia eca region who are poor or are just above the poverty line using pre crisis household data along with aggregate macroeconomic outturns to simulate the impact of the crisis on households transmitted via credit market shocks price shocks and income shocks this report finds that adverse effects are widespread and that poor and non poor households alike are vulnerable by 2010 for the region as a whole some 11 million more people will likely be in poverty and over 23 million more people will find themselves just above the poverty line because of the crisis the aggregate results mask the heterogeneity of impact within countries including the concentration of the poverty impact in selected economic sectors meanwhile stress tests on household indebtedness in selected countries suggest that ongoing macroeconomic shocks will expand the pool of households unable to service their debt many of them from among the ranks of relatively richer households in fact already there are rising household loan delinquency rates finally there is evidence that the food and fuel crisis is not over and a new round of price increases via currency adjustments will have substantial effects on net consumers lessons from last year's food crisis suggest that the poor are the worst hit as many of the poor in albania kyrgyz republic and tajikistan for example are net food consumers with limited access to agricultural assets and inputs the resilience of households to macroeconomic shocks ultimately depends upon the economy's institutional readiness the flexibility of the economic policy regime and the ability of the population to adjust however compared with previous crises the scope for households to engage in their traditional coping strategies may be more limited fiscal policy responses in the short term are also constrained by rapidly falling revenues governments in eca have to make difficult choices over what spending items to protect and what items to cut social protection programs to reform and scale up and new this study offers the first complete overview of the remarkable public finances of the dutch republic of the united provinces wantje fritschy has analysed the development and structure of its public revenue and expenditure she argues that a tax revolution and the fiscal resilience of the provinces together were more important for its surprising performance than holland's public debt alone and the institutional and economic characteristics of its urban system were more important than wealth due to foreign trade comparisons with the fiscal systems of three more centralized states the venetian republic britain and the ottoman empire underline the crucial importance of long term urbanization trajectories in understanding early modern fiscal performance it was not because it was federal that the dutch republic collapsed
