their enthusiasm by remaining wary of both the seductions of jazz's commercialization and the loss of ethnic identity in the melting pot turning conventional wisdom on its head a senior partner and an innovation specialist from mckinsey company debunk the myth that high octane built to last companies can continue to excel year after year and reveal the dynamic strategies of discontinuity and creative destruction these corporations must adopt in order to maintain excellence and remain competitive in striking contrast to such bibles of business literature as In Search of Excellence and Built to Last richard n foster and sarah kaplan draw on research they conducted at mckinsey company of more than one thousand corporations in fifteen industries over a thirty six year period the industries they examined included old economy industries such as pulp and paper and chemicals and new economy industries like semiconductors and software using this enormous fact base foster and kaplan show that even the best run and most widely admired companies included in their sample are unable to sustain their market beating levels of performance for more than ten to fifteen years foster and kaplan's long term studies of corporate birth survival and death in america show that the corporate equivalent of el dorado the golden company that continually outperforms the market has never existed it is a myth corporations operate with management philosophies based on the assumption of continuity as a result in the long term they cannot change or create value at the pace and scale of the markets their control processes the very processes that enable them to survive over the long haul deaden them to the vital and constant need for change proposing a radical new business paradigm foster and kaplan argue that redesigning the corporation to change at the pace and scale of the capital markets rather than merely operate well will require more than simple adjustments they explain how companies like Johnson and Johnson, Enron, Corning, and GE are overcoming cultural lock-in by transforming rather than incrementally improving their companies. They are doing this by creating new businesses, selling off or closing down businesses or divisions whose growth is slowing down, as well as abandoning outdated, ingrown structures and rules, and adopting new decision-making processes, control systems, and mental models. Corporations, they argue, must learn to be as dynamic and responsive as the market itself if they are to sustain superior returns and thrive over the long term. In a book that is sure to shake the business world to its foundations, Creative Destruction like re-engineering the corporation before it offers a new paradigm that will change the way we think about business.

Vietnam remains a mystery to the American mind, a former enemy which somehow defeated the American war machine with few weapons or uniformed military. Vietnam remains a significant presence in Southeast Asia. This book presents issues important to understanding Vietnam today, as well as a historical background on the country.

When her mother is murdered, a woman is propelled into a twisted world of danger and double lives. In this gripping psychological thriller from the bestselling author of Somebody's Daughter and Cemetery Girl, Leslie Hampton always cared for her troubled son, Ronnie's special needs, and assumed that her daughter, Elizabeth, would take him in when the time came. When Leslie dies unexpectedly, Elizabeth is consumed by grief. Then police discover that Leslie was strangled, and they immediately suspect that one of Ronnie's outbursts took a tragic turn. Elizabeth can't believe that her brother is capable of murder, but who else could have had a motive to kill their quiet, retired mother? More questions arise when a stranger is named in Leslie's will: a woman also named Elizabeth. As the family's secrets unravel, a man from Leslie's past who claims to have all the answers shows up, but those answers might put Elizabeth and those she loves the most in mortal danger.

Twenty years have passed, and Mandy has helped to raise Laura's fraternal twins, David and Diana. When Laura is suddenly pulled back to Anandria, she must find a way to unite her fractured family. Vaaron is eager to meet his adult children for the very first time, but both are missing. Diana awakens to find herself the centre of attention in a cult-like gathering they revere and fear her, and she finds she has to rely upon their high priest for help. David opens his eyes to find he's in a forest with a creature hovering over him, confused and disoriented. It takes an unsettling act of magic and the persistence of the creature following him to lead them into an unusual relationship. Both siblings eventually discover they are in Anandria, a world they had believed to be a figment of their aunt Mandy's imagination, where they must face challenges with their unlikely partners as their guides lucifer is delighted when he lands in anandria and feels his powers stir better still he discovers that at least one of laura s children has come to anandria too and since he still desires the destruction of laura s soul what better way to lure laura to her death than to use one of her children
