the unintended deaths of civilians in war are too often dismissed as unavoidable inevitable and accidental and despite the best efforts of the u s to avoid them civilian casualties in afghanistan iraq and pakistan have been a regular feature of the united states wars after 9 11 in accountability for killing neta c crawford focuses on the causes of these many episodes of foreseeable collateral damage and the moral responsibility for them the dominant paradigm of legal and moral responsibility in war today stresses both intention and individual accountability deliberate killing of civilians is outlawed and international law blames individual soldiers and commanders for such killing an individual soldier may be sentenced life in prison or death for deliberately killing even a small number of civilians but the large scale killing of dozens or even hundreds of civilians may be forgiven if it was unintentional incidental to a military operation the very law that protects noncombatants from deliberate killing may allow many episodes of unintended killing under international law civilian killing may be forgiven if it was unintended and incidental to a militarily necessary operation given the nature of contemporary war where military organizations training and the choice of weapons doctrine and tactics create the conditions for systemic collateral damage crawford contends that placing moral responsibility for systemic collateral damage on individuals is misplaced she develops a new theory of organizational moral agency and responsibility and shows how the us military exercised moral agency and moral responsibility to reduce the incidence of collateral damage in america s most recent wars indeed when the u s military and its allies saw that the perception of collateral damage killing was causing it to lose support in the war zones it moved to a population centric doctrine putting civilian protection at the heart of its strategy trenchant original and ranging across security studies international law ethics and international relations accountability for killing will reshape our understanding of the ethics of contemporary war this book is the outcome of a research project directed by natalino ronzitti to explore the current status and future prospects of international humanitarian law of air warfare this is achieved through the analysis of international customary law the conventional provisions in force and the most recent state practice as the most recent conflicts suggest air warfare has known an exponential growth however even a rapid analysis of the international humanitarian law applicable to air warfare shows a defective and fragmentary situation this book will fill the current gap that exists in legal literature and will critically review and evaluate recent state practice this unique new work of reference traces the origins of the modern laws of warfare from the earliest times to the present day relying on written records from as far back as 2400 bce and using sources ranging from the bible to security council resolutions the author pieces together the history of a subject which is almost as old as civilisation itself the author shows that as long as humanity has been waging wars it has also been trying to find ways of legitimising different forms of combatants and ascribing rules to them protecting civilians who are either inadvertently or intentionally caught up between them and controlling the use of particular classes of weapons that may be used in times of conflict thus it is that this work is divided into three substantial parts volume 1 on the laws affecting combatants and captives volume 2 on civilians and volume 3 on the law of arms control this second book on civilians examines four different topics the first topic deals with the targetting of civilians in times of war this discussion is one which has been largely governed by the developments of technologies which have allowed projectiles to be discharged over ever greater areas and attempts to prevent their indiscriminate utilisation have struggled to keep pace the second topic concerns the destruction of the natural environment with particular regard to the utilisation of starvation as a method of warfare and unlike the first topic this one has rarely changed over thousands of years although contemporary practices are beginning to represent a clear break from tradition the third topic is concerned with the long standing problems of civilians under the occupation of opposing military forces where the practices of genocide collective punishments and or reprisals and rape have occurred the final topic in this volume is about the theft or destruction of the property of the enemy in terms of either pillage or the intentional devastation of the cultural property of the opposition as a work of reference this set of three books is unrivalled and will be of immense benefit to scholars and practitioners researching and advising on the laws of warfare it also tells a story which throws fascinating new light on the history of international law and on the history of warfare itself a fresh examination of the ethical and intellectual issues and dilemmas associated with attempts to establish formal humanitarian limits on weaponry this new study considers how governments non governmental organizations academics political commentators and others have responded to the predicaments associated with imposing classifications about the relative acceptability of force and what is accomplished in their strategies for doing so it develops these issues through combining thematic and conceptual analysis with the examination of varied cases of prohibitions on conventional and unconventional weapons through customary and statutory laws multilateral treaties un resolutions and national legislation the book will appeal to students of security studies military technology peace studies international relations and discourse theory humanitarian disarmament is not new but instead represents a re emergence of a long standing sensibility in disarmament discourse in civilian or combatant a challenge for the 21st century anicée van engeland describes how the practice and evolution of warfare have turned international humanitarian law into an enigmatic law that is complex to understand interpret and enforce van engeland identifies the challenges that advocates of international humanitarian law face which range from genocide asymmetrical warfare and terrorism to rape as a weapon the events of 9 11 and the aftermath have put this branch of international law in particular the distinction between civilians and combatants to the test van engeland describes how some analysts have both questioned whether international law can adapt to these issues and challenged international humanitarian law on the basis that it cannot meet today s warfare realities van engeland responds to these critics reminding readers that international humanitarian law was not drafted to rule on war but rather to protect victims of war in particular civilians consequently van engeland demonstrates that this branch of international law is in constant evolution through a thorough and illustrated analysis van engeland explains how civilians and combatants are still distinguishable as well as how international humanitarian has been stretched to meet these challenges the encyclopedia of military science provides a comprehensive ready reference on the organization traditions training purpose and functions of today s military entries in this four volume work include coverage of the duties responsibilities and authority of military personnel and an understanding of strategies and tactics of the modern military and how they interface with political social legal economic and technological factors a large component is devoted to issues of leadership group dynamics motivation problem solving and decision making in the military context finally this work also covers recent american military history since the end of the cold war with a special emphasis on peacekeeping and peacemaking operations the first persian gulf war the events surrounding 9 11 and the wars in afghanistan and iraq and how the military has been changing in relation to these events the book shows how september 11 provided an opportunity for the bush administration to push through hard right domestic and foreign policies many of which were being contested and blocked in congress pre september 11 visit our website for sample chapters the availability of food is an especially significant issue in zones of conflict because conflict nearly always impinges on the production and the distribution of food and causes increased competition for food land and resources controlling the production of and access to food can also be used as a weapon by protagonists in conflict the logistics of supply of food to military personnel operating in conflict zones is another important issue these themes unite this collection the chapters of which span different geographic areas this volume will appeal to scholars in a number of different disciplines including anthropology nutrition political science development studies and international relations as well as practitioners working in the private and public sectors who are currently concerned with food related issues in the field international law makes it explicit that states shall not intervene militarily of otherwise in the affairs of other states it is a central principle of the charter of the united nations but international law also provides an exception when a conflict within a state poses a threat to international peace military intervention by the un may be warranted indeed the un charter provides for an international police force though nothing has ever come of this provision the charter and other un documents also assert that human rights are to be protected but in the past the responsibility for the protection of human rights has for the most part been allowed to rest on the government of the state where the violation of rights occurs not surprisingly in this context the question of what protection if any should be provided by the un or otherwise to individuals when their human rights are violated by their governments or with the complicity of their governments remains a contentious issue should the principle of respect for state sovereignty trump the principle of respect for human rights in this volume contributors grapple with a specific case was the north atlantic treaty organization nato intervention in kosovo legally or morally acceptable the contributors all have doubts on this score and several argue strongly that the intervention was both legally and morally unjustified a companion volume humanitarian intervention moral and philosophical issues focuses on the philosophical principles involved in this sort of question this volume on the other hand focuses as much or more on the political as on the philosophical
