this is the first book to treat bombing during wwii as a european phenomenon and not just the blitz on britain and germany with western europe now at the heart of a united continent it is even more difficult to explain how only 70 years ago european states destroyed much of the urban landscape from the air there were many blitzes between 1940 and 1945 with an estimated 700 000 people killed the purpose of this book is to provide the basis for a comparison of the experience of western states under the impact of bombing in particular it considers the political cultural and social responses to bombing rather than the military strategic and social dimensions which have formed the core of the discussion hitherto this book will correct the popular perception of the british blitz as the key bombing experience by exposing the reality of life under the bombs for communities as far apart as brest palermo and rostock an international panel of historians consider the issues raised amidst the bombing of human rights and protection of civilians in this seminal event in c20th history

this edition contains 56 additional new illustrations from actual cases to further describe the examples as reasons for the methods used in the text written by an internationally recognized expert on bombs bombings and bomb disarmament this classic text serves as the primary reference on the subject for law enforcement criminal justice and security professionals in both the public and private sectors book jacket a multi level analysis of pakistani human bombs reveals that suicide terrorism is caused by multiple factors with perceived effectiveness vengeance poverty and religious fundamentalism playing a varying role at the individual organizational and environmental levels nationalism and resistance to foreign occupation appear as the least relevant factors behind suicide terrorism in pakistan the findings of this research are based on a multi level analysis of suicide bombings incorporating both primary and secondary data in this study the author also decodes personal demographic economic and marital characteristics of pakistani human bombs on average pakistani suicide bombers are the youngest but the deadliest in the world and more than 71 percent of their victims are civilians earlier concepts of a weak link linking terrorism with poverty and illiteracy do not hold up against the recent data gathered on the post 9 11 generation of fighters in pakistan in suicidal and non suicidal categories as the majority of fighters from a variety of terrorist organizations are economically deprived and semi literate the majority of pakistani human bombs come from rural backgrounds with very few from major urban centres suicide bombings in pakistan remain a male dominated phenomenon with most bombers being single men demographic profiling of pakistani suicide bombers based on a random sample of 80 failed and successful attackers dents the notion that american drone strikes play a primary role in promoting terrorism in all its manifestations the study concludes that previous scholarly attempts to explain suicide bombings are largely based on middle eastern data thus their application in the case of pakistan can be misleading the pakistani case study of suicide terrorism demonstrates unique characteristics hence it needs to be understood and countered through a context specific and multi level approach an attempt to determine the effect of bombing upon the willingness and capacity of german civilians to give full support to the war effort how undetonated bombs from a war that ended more than fifty years ago still affect cambodian farmers and their land over the course of the vietnam war the united states dropped 500 000 tons of bombs over cambodia more than the combined weight of every man woman and child in the country what began as a secret cia infiltration of laos eventually expanded into cambodia and escalated into a nine year war over the ho chi minh trail fought primarily with bombs fifty years after the last sortie residents of rural cambodia are still coping with the unexploded ordnance that covers their land in when the bombs stopped erin lin investigates the consequences of the us bombing campaign across postconflict cambodia drawing on interviews original econometric analysis and extensive fieldwork lin upends the usual scholarly perspective on the war and its aftermath presenting the viewpoint of those who suffered the bombing rather than those who dropped the bombs she shows that cambodian farmers stay at a subsistence level because much of their land is too dangerous to cultivate and yet paradoxically the same bombs that endanger and impoverish farming communities also protect them deterring predatory elites from grabbing and commodifying their land lin argues that the half century legacy of american bombs has sedimented the war into the layers of contemporary cambodian society policies aimed at developing or modernizing cambodia whether economic liberalization or authoritarian consolidation must be realized in an environment haunted by the violence of the past as the stories lin captures show the bombing served as a critical juncture in these farming villages marking the place in time where development stopped
