the current conflict in syria has killed more than 80 000 people and displaced four million yet most observers predict that the worst is still to come and for two years the international community has failed to take action world leaders have repeatedly resolved not to let atrocities happen in plain view but the legacy of the bloody and costly intervention in iraq has left policymakers with little appetite for more military operations so we find ourselves in the grip of a double burden the urge to stop the bleeding in syria and the fear that attempting to do so would be iraq redux what should be done about the apparently intractable syrian conflict this book focuses on the ethical and political dilemmas at the heart of the debate about syria and the possibility of humanitarian intervention in today s world the contributors syria experts international relations theorists human rights activists and scholars of humanitarian intervention don t always agree but together they represent the best political thinking on the issue the syria dilemma includes original pieces

civic entrepreneurship lies at the heart of the arab spring from the iconic image of an occupied tahrir square to scenes of dancing protesters in syria and politically conscious hip hop in tunisia people across the middle east and north africa continue to collaborate and experiment their way out of years of dictatorship and political stagnation the future of the arab spring examines the spirit of civic entrepreneurship that brought once untouchable dictators to their knees and continues to shape the region s political artistic and technology sectors through interviews with some of the region s leading civic entrepreneurs including political activists artists and technologists maryam jamshidi broadens popular understandings of recent events in this misunderstood region of the world features first hand interviews with some of the most important political cultural and economic players on the ground in egypt yemen tunisia and other arab spring countries offers a window into a region often misunderstood in the united states illuminates the potential for positive grassroots change in the social political and economic systems of arab countries a new intellectual history of u s foreign policy from the late nineteenth century to the present worldmaking is a compelling new take on the history of american diplomacy rather than retelling the story of realism versus idealism david milne suggests that u s foreign policy has also been crucially divided between those who view statecraft as an art and those who believe it can aspire to the certainty of science worldmaking follows a cast of characters who built on one another s ideas to create the policies we have today woodrow wilson s universalism and moralism led sigmund freud to diagnose him with a messiah complex walter lippmann was a syndicated columnist who commanded the attention of leaders as diverse as theodore roosevelt lyndon johnson and charles de gaulle paul wolfowitz was the intellectual architect of the 2003 invasion of Iraq and an admirer of Wilson's attempt to make the world safe for democracy each was engaged in a process of worldmaking formulating strategies that sought to deploy the nation's vast military and economic power or sought to retrench and focus on domestic issues to shape a world in which the United States would be best positioned to thrive tracing American statecraft from the age of steam engines to the age of drones Milne reveals patterns of worldmaking that have remained impervious to the passage of time the result is a panoramic history of U.S. foreign policy driven by ideas and by the lives and times of their authors

This study launches a systematic inquiry into the nature of the concept of humanitarian intervention focusing on its primary function of the protection of the endangered civilian populations who find themselves at the grave risk of genocide this is strengthened by a recollection of selected historical examples of similar events and the responses to them by the international community empowered by our modern understanding of the principle of state sovereignty human rights and anti genocide legislation applying the in statu nascendi ontology that accounts for the latest hybridized compartmentalization of various IR related theories the author provides a deep ontological inquiry into the nature origin and genesis of the idea of humanitarian intervention and opens up a broader debate on the limits of the principle of state sovereignty as well as on the international community's ignorance of some of the most severe cases of human rights abuses around the world

The Irish Yearbook of International Law supports research into Ireland's practice in international affairs and foreign policy filling a gap in existing legal scholarship and assisting in the dissemination of Irish thinking and practice on matters of international law on an annual basis the yearbook presents peer reviewed academic articles and book reviews on general issues of international law designated correspondents provide reports on international law developments in Ireland Irish practice in international bodies Ireland and the law of the sea and the law of the European Union as relevant to developments in Ireland in addition the yearbook reproduces key documents that reflect Irish practice on contemporary issues of international law publication of the Irish Yearbook of International Law makes Irish practice and opinio juris more readily available to governments academics and international bodies when determining the content of international law in providing a forum for the documentation and analysis of north south relations the yearbook also makes an important contribution to post conflict and transitional justice studies internationally as a matter of editorial policy the yearbook seeks to promote a multilateral approach to international affairs reflecting and reinforcing Ireland's long standing commitment to multilateralism as a core element of foreign policy

A travelogue full of adventure a place to belong is the story of a young teenage boy's search for self worth and faith in a cruel world Paul Miller was eight years old when his parents took him on a mystifying zigzagging journey from Detroit to Florida to California and back again his father's tenuous grip on reality becomes as changeable as the landscapes they travel through Paul's simple questions are ignored or answered by the back of his father's hand Paul jumps the roof tops of Detroit slums butts heads with the gangs of Los Angeles and gets caught up in a world of petty theft life hangs by bus fare the surprising kindness of a loving family a filthy motorist with a penchant for young boys the kiss of a young girl along the way Noah a wise fisherman shows Paul that God isn't some imperious judge sitting on top of a throne but can become your best friend a buddy you can talk to but can such a simple view account for all the misery Paul experiences in this captivating and at turns humorous story a young man travels into the depths of despair and back again to find a place he can call home I got hooked and couldn't stop this is a splendidly written story and quite a story to tell so candid unpretentious and courageous David Morris senior editor Guideposts Books Miller tells a remarkable story one that is in a sense an American Angela's Ashes but with the added element of faith as a factor in surviving an incredibly rough childhood Michael Wilt editor Nimble Spirit at least 200 000 250 000 people died in the war in Bosnia there are three million child soldiers in Africa more than 650 000 civilians have been killed as a result of the U.S. occupation of

Iraq between 600 000 and 800 000 women are trafficked across borders every year money laundering represents as much as 10 percent of global GDP internet child porn is a 20 billion a year industry these are big attention grabbing numbers frequently used in policy debates and media reporting Peter Andreas and Kelly M. Greenhill see only one problem these numbers are probably false their continued use and abuse reflect a much larger and troubling pattern policymakers and the media naively or deliberately accept highly politicized and questionable statistical claims about activities that are extremely difficult to measure as a result we too often become trapped by these mythical numbers with perverse and counterproductive consequences this problem exists in myriad policy realms but it is particularly pronounced in statistics related to the politically charged realms of global crime and conflict numbers of people killed in massacres and during genocides the size of refugee flows the magnitude of the illicit global trade in drugs and human beings and so on in sex drugs and body counts political scientists anthropologists sociologists and policy analysts critically examine the murky origins of some of these statistics and trace their remarkable proliferation they also assess the standard metrics used to evaluate policy effectiveness in combating problems such as terrorist financing sex trafficking and the drug trade

Volume III examines the most well known century of genocide the twentieth century opening with a discussion on the definitions of genocide and ethnic cleansing and their relationships to modernity it continues with a survey of the genocide studies field racism and antisemitism the four parts cover the impacts of racism total war imperial collapse and revolution the crises of World War Two the Cold War and globalization twenty eight scholars with expertise in specific regions document thirty genocides from 1918 to 2021 in Europe the Middle East Africa Asia and Latin America the cases range from the Armenian genocide to Maoist China from the Holocaust to Stalin's Ukraine from Indonesia to Guatemala Biafra Bangladesh Cambodia Bosnia and Rwanda and finally the contemporary fate of the Rohingyas in Myanmar and the ISIS slaughter of Yazidis in Iraq the volume ends with a chapter on the strategies for genocide prevention moving forward crises resulting from war or other upheavals turn the lives of individuals upside down and they can leave marks on a community for many years after the event this volume aims to explore how such crises were remembered in the ancient world and how communities reconstituted themselves after a crisis can crises serve as catalysts for innovation or change and how does this work what do crises reveal about the normality against which they are defined and framed people living in post crisis societies have no choice but to adapt to the changes caused by crisis such adaptation entails the question of how the relationship between the pre crisis situation and the new status quo is constructed and by whom due to the reduced possibility of using the immediate past which is tainted by conflict and bad memories it may involve revisions of historical narratives about communal pasts and identities through the selection of new anchors and sometimes even a discarding of the old ones crises affect all areas of life and crisis recovery likewise spans different spheres this volume finds traces of such recovery strategies in texts as well as visual representations in literary as well as in documentary texts in
