personal status laws remain a highly politicized area of debate in the middle east as the arena in which the contentious issues of women's rights, religion, and minority groups meet. This is especially so when it comes to divorce in Tunisia, with the moderate Islamist party Ennahda winning the first elections following the 2011 revolution. Questions of religion in public life have gained greater primacy; the country is often hailed for its progressive personal status code, seen as an exception to the practice in many other Muslim countries. Polygamy is banned, for example, and in divorce cases there is gender equality. However, Tunisia's legal system contains many gaps and leaves much room for interpretation. Bearing in mind this importance of the role of Islam in judicial courts, Maaike Voorhoeve investigates whether the more progressive and ostensibly secular principles enshrined in Tunisia's personal status code of 1956 are in fact adhered to in divorce cases, and if not, whether judges frequently turn to the Sharia custom or societal norms as their primary sources of guidance. Through extensive research in the Tunisian courts, Voorhoeve investigates the different types of divorce, the arguments presented to the court, and the consequent legal decisions made. She focuses on the role of female judges, testing the assumption that they adjudicate in a more gender-neutral way, and examining the impact they have had on Tunisian legal culture. And through this, Tunisian society, gender, and divorce law in North Africa. Therefore, she sheds light on the wide-reaching debate throughout North Africa and the Middle East concerning the role of Islam and Sharia in the public, political, legal, and private spheres.

this debate which often pits secularists against Islamists but is in reality much more nuanced. It is key in a variety of fields including Middle East studies and Islamic law.

This book focuses on women's important contribution to Sufism by analyzing the lives and seminal contributions of six mystic Sufi women to Islamic spirituality, to help reverse the sidelining of Sufi women in the recorded academic literature. The author has selected a representative sample of figures from diverse Islamic dynasties with varying backgrounds, social status, and devotional contributions, taking a historical approach attentive to specific political contexts. Readers will be introduced to the contributions of Umm al-Balikhī and Fātima of Nishāpūr in the ninth century; Khurāsān Aisha al-Mannūbiyya of the Hafsid dynasty in Ifrīqiya; Aisha al-Bā'ūniyya of the Mamlūk dynasties of Egypt and Syria; the Mughal princess Jahan Ara Begum; and the daughter of the Caliph of Sokoto, Nana Asma'u. It is argued that these ascetic and Sufi women were recognized by their male and female peers, became political leaders in their communities, and were honored as examples of sanctity and erudition. Their works influenced mystical discourse, hagiographical writings, religious language, and models of religious authority, to secure legacies of Islamic orthopraxis. The book will appeal to anyone interested in Sufism and Sufi history, as well as to those wishing to delve into the understudied topic of Muslim women's spirituality.
