ultimately what really does it mean to be creative how can we see ourselves as participating in the creativity of god for mission all people are creative sadly however for many creativity is stifled and remains stunted due to several reasons social economic political cultural and even spiritual this study explores how icms indigenous cosmopolitan musicians negotiate their creativity amid the liminal spaces they occupy as they share in the creativity of god for mission through their music but what exactly does it mean to share in the creativity of god for mission contrary to popular notion icms evidence that creativity is not merely innovation it is not a psychological metric for measuring human potential it is certainly not the icing on the cake reserved for a few so called creatives or artists rather theological creativity is participation in the creatio dei it is theologically prior to mission as a missiological framework creatio dei is understood here in terms of creative being creative construction design and creative performance hopefully this book can help clarify and expand our understanding of what it means to be truly creative and thereby with the help of the creator put into practice principles of theological creativity as we share in the creativity of god in the world with others public opinion in recent years has soured on multiculturalism due in large part to fears of radical islam in multiculturalism without culture anne phillips contends that critics misrepresent culture as the explanation of everything individuals from minority and non western groups do she puts forward a defense of multiculturalism that dispenses with notions of culture instead placing individuals themselves at its core multiculturalism has been blamed for encouraging the oppression of women forced marriages female genital cutting school girls wearing the hijab many critics opportunistically deploy gender equality to justify the retreat from multiculturalism hijacking the equality agenda to perpetuate cultural stereotypes phillips informs her argument with the feminist insistence on recognizing women as agents and defends her position using an unusually broad range of literature including political theory philosophy feminist theory law and anthropology she argues that critics and proponents alike exaggerate the unity distinctness and intractability of cultures thereby encouraging a perception of men and women as dupes constrained by cultural dictates opponents of multiculturalism may think the argument against accommodating cultural difference is over and won but they are wrong phillips believes multiculturalism still has an important role to play in achieving greater social equality in this book she offers a new way of addressing dilemmas of justice and equality in multiethnic multicultural societies intervening at this critical moment when so many western countries are poised to abandon multiculturalism
