more than once tom held someone as that person died in his arms in n ireland during the conflict between the irish republican army factions and the british army during the troubles from the 70s one of those times was an undercover captain of the british intelligence who was shot several times by the pira at point blank range during a pira easter parade born a catholic in derry in the heart of the bogside on the 12th of july the very day the protestant orangemen march throughout the province but especially on the derry walls looking over into the bogside with a shout of no surrender while many joined the ira various factions against british rule became a volunteer as a medic at the first aid post in the language of the time and location he didn't care who was wounded he only wanted to help those in great need of first aid before medical aid was available being born into a catholic family does not make a person a christian as murray would learn when us president john kennedy was assassinated murray took a major step in following the catholic teaching but it was not the full journey that he'd make later in life this is most decidedly not a story about the fighting this kind of story is played out across the world every day in conflicts that make international news and violent disputes that barely make the local media as murray says in the introduction this book is about a conflict that goes far deeper than the history of ireland or of any other place the conflict within the soul which has expressed itself in a myriad form of ways since man first rebelled against god at the dawn of creation it is the story of one man trying to come to grips with his fellow man and the inhumanity displayed toward each other the time and the setting are real the northern ireland conflicts and the people are equally real it is the ira factions war against the british forces in these very real battles that are also a metaphor murray sometimes identifies the people by name and rank the atrocities of conflict are very real but murray does not dwell on the horrors of that in other words this is not a story of fighting blood and gore in the physical realm the fighting murray goes through is just a real but is on the spiritual battlefield murray signing up as a cadet as a first aider brought his journey into the horrors of the conflict which was an unforgettable one he saw the battle of bogside a three day fight that ended with the british army coming in he was also there at the infamous bloody sunday the band u2 in 1983 had the song sunday bloody sunday that became famous and much more read about his own conflict with the disinfected catholics and the ira the pira's quest to find out did he ever work for the british intelligence while he lived in the bogside of derry and read how he replied to their question in the maze prison directly and indirectly many times despite that he was finally arrested and jailed on terrorism charges i was arrested because i became a carrier for a package to be planted in government building that went off the pira used me to do it i tried to get out of it but really had no choice if i didn't carry out their act of terrorism a pira cell would plant a bomb under my parents car his personal transformation came about at the lord kesh maze prison where he put his trust in the lord jesus christ the maze goal was a facility used to hold different factions of the ira and uvf uda paramilitaries who were arrested and tried in the courts later tom's baptism was a further step of obedience to his lord jesus christ in the catholic church babies are baptized but in the bible believers in christ were baptised when they believed on the lord jesus christ the author's baptism came as an adult and was an outward sign of an inward conversion that happened at the basement of the prison that was once a condemned man cell converted into a bathroom in the crumlin road goal the troubles changed many people how could it not it changed tommy murray too in his case for the better come read about tom s journey own damascus road experience and see why his last day in a prison goal he nailed a scroll to his cell door with the words it is finished in this groundbreaking title a r oppenheimer tells how the irish republican army became the most adept and experienced insurgency group the world has ever seen through their bombing expertise and how after generations of conflict it all came to an end the book is a comprehensive account of more than 150 years of irish republican strategic tactical and operational details and an analysis of the ira s mission doctrine targeting and acquisition of weapons and explosives as a leading expert on non conventional weapons and explosives oppenheimer vividly presents the story behind the bombs those who built and deployed them those who had to deal with and dismantle them and those who suffered or died from them he analyses where how and why the ira s 19 000 bombs were built targeted and deployed and explores what the ira was hoping to accomplish in its unrivaled campaign of violence and insurgency through covert acquisition training intelligence and counter intelligence beginning with the fenian dynamiters in the second half of the nineteenth century oppenheimer fully describes and assesses the impact of the pre 1970s bombing campaigns in northern ireland and england and the evolution of strategies and tactics during the troubles he concludes with the decommissioning of an arsenal big enough to arm several battalions which included an entire home crafted missile system an unsurpassed range of improvised explosive devices ieds and enough explosives to blow up several urban centres the author scrutinises the level of deadly improvisation that became the hallmark of the provisional ira s expertise and the ingenuity in its pioneering ied timing delay and disguise technologies and follows the arms race it carried on with the british army and security services in a long war of mutual assured disruption he also provides an insight into the bombing equipment and guns in the vast ira inventory held at irish police hq in dublin

new york times bestseller soon to be an fx limited series streaming on hulu national book critics circle award winner from the author of empire of pain a stunning intricate narrative about a notorious killing in northern ireland and its devastating repercussions one of the new york times s 20 best books of the 21st century masked intruders dragged jean mcconville a 38 year old widow and mother of 10 from her belfast home in 1972 in this meticulously reported book as finely paced as a novel keefe uses mcconville s murder as a prism to tell the history of the troubles in northern ireland interviewing people on both sides of the conflict he transforms the tragic damage and waste of the era into a searing utterly gripping saga new york times book review reads like a novel keefe is a master of narrative nonfiction an incredible story rolling stone a best book of the year the new york times the washington post the wall street journal time npr and more jean mcconville s abduction was one of the most notorious episodes of the vicious conflict known as the troubles everyone in the neighborhood knew the ira was responsible but in a climate of fear and paranoia no one would speak of it in 2003 five years after an accord brought an uneasy peace to northern ireland a set of human bones was discovered on a beach mcconville s children knew it was their mother when they were told a blue safety pin was attached to the dress with so many kids she had always kept it handy for diapers or ripped clothes patrick radden keefe s mesmerizing book on the bitter conflict in northern ireland and its aftermath uses the mcconville case as a starting point for the tale of a society wracked by a violent guerrilla war a war whose consequences have never been reckoned with the brutal violence seared not only people like the mcconville children but also ira members embittered by a peace that fell far short of the goal of a united ireland and left them wondering whether the killings they committed were not justified acts of war but simple murders from radical and impetuous ira terrorists such as dolours price who when she was barely out of her teens was already planting bombs in london and targeting on a september day in 1920 an angry italian anarchist named mario buda exploded a horse drawn wagon filled with dynamite and iron scrap near new york s wall street killing 40 people since buda s prototype the car bomb has evolved into a poor man s air force a generic weapon of mass destruction that now craters cities from bombay to oklahoma city in this provocative history mike davis traces the its worldwide use and development in the process exposing the role of state intelligence agencies particularly those of the united states israel india and pakistan in globalizing urban terrorist techniques davis argues that it is the incessant impact of car bombs rather than the more apocalyptic threats of nuclear or bio terrorism that is changing cities and urban lifestyles as privileged centers of power increasingly surround themselves with rings of steel against a weapon that nevertheless seems impossible to defeat bombing and terror of extraordinary duration and inventiveness at the heart of that campaign lies one man gerryadams from the outbreak of the troubles to the present day he has been an immensely influential figure the most compelling question about the ira is how did a man who condoned atrocities that resulted in huge numbers of civilian deaths also become the guiding light behind the peace process moloney s book is now updated to encompass the anxious and uneasy peace that has prevailed to 2007 to witness war is in large part to hear it and to survive it is among other things to have listened to it and to have listened through it listening to war sound music trauma and survival in wartime iraq is a groundbreaking study of the centrality of listening to the experience of modern warfare based on years of ethnographic interviews with u s military service members and iraqi civilians as well as on direct observations of wartime iraq author j martin daughtry reveals how these populations learned to extract valuable information from the ambient soundscape while struggling with the deleterious effects that it produced in their ears throughout their bodies and in their psyches daughtry examines the dual edged nature of sound its potency as a source of information and a source of trauma within a sophisticated conceptual frame that highlights the affective power of sound and the vulnerability and agency of individual auditors by theorizing violence through the prism of sound and sound through the prism of violence daughtry provides a productive new vantage point for examining these strangely conjoined phenomena two chapters dedicated to wartime music in iraqi and u s military contexts show how music was both an important instrument of the military campaign and the victim of a multitude of violent acts throughout the war a landmark work within the study of conflict sound studies and ethnomusicology listening to war will expand your understanding of the experience of armed violence and the experience of sound more generally at the same time it provides a discrete window into the lives of individual iraqis and americans struggling to orient themselves within the fog of war

a brutally real and unrelentingly raw memoir kirkus starred review war photographer lynsey addario s memoir it s what i do is the story of how the relentless pursuit of truth in virtually every major theater of war in the twenty first century has shaped her life what she does with clarity beauty and candor is to document often in their most extreme moments the complex lives of others it s her work but it s much more than that it s her singular calling lynsey addario was just finding her way as a young photographer when september 11 changed the world one of the few photojournalists with experience in afghanistan she gets the call to return and cover the american invasion she makes a decision she would often find herself making not to stay home not to lead a quiet or predictable life but to set out across the world face the chaos of crisis and make a name for herself addario finds a way to travel with a purpose she photographs the afghan people before and after the taliban reign the civilian casualties and misunderstood insurgents of the iraq war as well as the burned villages and countless dead in darfur she exposes a culture of violence against women in the congo and tells the riveting story of her headline making kidnapping by pro qaddafi forces in the libyan civil war addario takes bravery for granted but she is not fearless she uses her fear and it creates empathy it is that feeling that empathy that is essential to her work we see this clearly on display as she interviews rape victims in the congo or photographs a fallen soldier with whom she had been embedded in iraq or documents the tragic lives of starving somali children lynsey takes us there and we begin to understand how getting to the hard truth trumps fear as a woman photojournalist determined to be taken as seriously as her male peers addario fights her way into a boys club of a profession rather than choose between her personal life and her career addario learns to strike a necessary balance in the man who will become her husband she finds at last a real love to complement her work not take away from it and as a new mother she gains an all the more intensely personal understanding of the fragility of life watching uprisings unfold and people fight to the death for their freedom addario understands she is documenting not only news but also the fate of society it s what i do is more than just a snapshot of life on the front lines it is witness to the human cost of war
