genocide occurs in every time period and on every continent using the 1948 u n definition of genocide as its departure point this book examines the main episodes in the history of genocide from the beginning of human history to the present norman m naimark lucidly shows that genocide both changes over time depending on the character of major historical periods and remains the same in many of its murderous dynamics he examines cases of genocide as distinct episodes of mass violence but also in historical connection with earlier episodes unlike much of the literature in genocide studies naimark argues that genocide can also involve the elimination of targeted social and political groups providing an insightful analysis of communist and anti communist genocide he pays special attention to settler sometimes colonial genocide as a subject of major concern illuminating how deeply the elimination of indigenous peoples especially in africa south america and north america influenced recent historical developments at the same time the classic cases of genocide in the twentieth century the armenian genocide the holocaust rwanda and bosnia are discussed together with recent episodes in darfur and congo this book has three main themes the socio economic history of turkish society in the 17th 18th centuries the outcome of the tanzimat reforms in the province of jerusalem as an example of the whole phenomenon and the historical origins of turkish and arab identities leading to the modern phenomenon of nationalism many of the studies are based on archival research and the documents give a new picture of the issues involved thus women were much more involved in the public arena and in economic life of the city that formerly thought the urban family at this time was much smaller and nuclear like on the whole much more modern looking than anticipated in the same way turkish society was far from being despotically oppressed by the ottoman centre with several institutions existing in it that gave substance to the term civil society in the context of the 19th century it was found that judging by the case of the province of jerusalem the final phase of the tanzimat really tipped the balance in favour of the success of this whole movement of reform ottoman society and ottoman state became much more orderly and at ease with themselves than before or at least than the stormy decades of the early 19th century the final studies show that the ottoman period and the structure of the ottoman state more properly exerted much influence on the forms of nationalism that developed in the middle east after the ottoman downfall this is the first study to compare the philosophical systems of secular scientific philosopher mario bunge 1919 2020 and moroccan islamic philosopher taha abd al rahman b 1945 in their efforts to establish the philosophical underpinnings of an ideal modernity these two great thinkers speak to the same elements of the human condition despite their opposing secular and religious worldviews while the differences between bunge s critical realist epistemology and materialist ontology on the one hand and taha s spiritualist ontology and revelational mystical epistemology on the other are fundamental there is remarkable common ground between their scientific and islamic versions of humanism both call for an ethics of prosperity combined with social justice and both criticize postmodernism and religious conservatism the aspiration of this book is to serve as a model for future dialogue between holders of western and islamic worldviews in mutual pursuit of modernity s best case scenario
