this book critically engages with the concepts of small states and soft power and advances a new approach to defining small states a new conceptualisation of soft power and a method for empirically analysing the exercise of soft power it revisits the concepts of small states and soft power with a focus on bhutan and qatar and their approach to exercise soft power to achieve their foreign policy goals building on two main perspectives to define small states the objective approach and the subjective perspective this book offers an intersubjective approach to define states as small the intersubjective approach requires a shared understanding between states that a certain state is small the book further highlights the importance of deconstructing the meaning of size and to separate the notion of size from the concept of power because size is not always indicative of power it argues that although small states tend to have fewer material resources than large states they nevertheless can have influence through the exercise of soft power soft power is in this book defined as the ability of an actor to convince another actor that something is true convincing deals with the beliefs of an actor and is a mental decision rather than a physical action this book argues that the exercise of soft power can be analysed through examining the development projection and reception of identities the findings of this book show that bhutan was more successful than qatar in exercising soft power and explains the reasons for this variation aimed at a multidisciplinary audience this book will be of particular interest to practitioners scholars and students of international relations political power small states and area studies innate cultural and sectarian divisions master peace installs unequal relations of domination through the work of metropolitan theories as in ethnic conflict and failed state and practices such as conflict resolution workshops and crisis reports converting the radical demand for just peace into a postcolonial regime of dependence on technocratic tools unaccountable experts and external donors kosmatopoulos shows how master peace has been framing debates designing interventions of peace and war and defining the problem of violence in lebanon and the middle east for decades to deleterious effect as the supposed moral high ground that justifies external intervention and precludes political solutions or democratic forms of action master peace has obscured the geopolitical and ideological nature of violence in the region substituting democratic notions of peace for an elitist antipolitics of expertise characterized by dependence domination and epistemic violence unleashing the potential that can be found in the space between words and images designers have long understood that image text and typeface can work together to produce new meanings creating semiotic registers impossible to achieve with image or text alone in the space between look and read a study of complementary meaning in design susan hagan presents a framework called inter play which explains how these new meanings emerge inter play is not simply an analytical tool it is also a method for using complementary meaning to encourage critical thinking in design audiences drawing from cognitive psychology art theory discourse analysis design and rhetoric hagan breaks down the synthesis of looking and reading into a complex series of registers which are revealed through examples of excellent design thus the book is both a theoretical exploration of how designers communicate and a casebook in communication well achieved from the physiology of vision to the limits of language from allan paivio to uwe loesch the space between look and read expands our understanding of complementary design and argues that by engaging audiences through multiple cognitive registers complementary design serves as a cognitive tool helping audiences reach new conclusions about complex problems in the last decade public diplomacy has become one of the most important concepts in the development and implementation of foreign policy trials of engagement the future of us public diplomacy with contributors from leading scholars in disciplines from international relations to communications considers the challenges for this new public diplomacy especially as it is pursued by the us government it highlights the challenges of aligning policy and projection overcoming bureaucratic tensions and the language used by public diplomats most importantly the volume illustrates that the issues for public diplomacy are more than those of a producer seeking to win the hearts and minds of passive audiences trials of engagement portrays public diplomacy as an increasingly public project to overcome the trials of engagement public diplomacy must provide more than a rhetorical nod to a two way process ultimately a collaborative public diplomacy must be built on a broad understanding of those involved the recognition of stakeholders as peers and effective interaction with networks made up of traditional and new interlocutors as the bearers of the next generation in one of the richest countries in the world the social status of qatari women is closely linked to their ability to have children women are expected to reflect the cultural and religious values attached to motherhood and not having children puts women in a potentially vulnerable position but qatari women must also play an essential role in reflecting the country as a centre of arab modernity availing themselves of the new opportunities in work politics and public life this book explores the changing role of women in qatari society and analyses how qatari women navigate the competing expectations placed upon them based on original interviews with pregnant women and women who have experienced miscarriage as well as interviews with doctors religious scholars and family members the book reveals how socio cultural forces shape the way miscarriage is framed and experienced it also reveals how intimate reproductive events are deeply entangled with broader societal and political issues in exploring the themes of reproduction motherhood and family relationships this unique study sheds light on the values and beliefs circulating in qatari society and how these are mapped on to women s bodies liz began experiencing tomasino s infidelity having given birth to one son they named tommy growing up in a loveless household filled with the stress of an ill conceived union weighed heavily on the mind of that young boy whose destiny in life took him to a place relegated to society s rejects he did not deserve that fate so continues our exploration into the lives of marge and elizabeth two friends who discovered each other walking on parallel boulevards of broken dreams where tears were shed years passed seasons came and ended lives were redeemed joy came to erase the sorrows of yesteryear and to mend the broken hearts a new generation awakens to perpetuate life continuum the saga doesn t end but is rejuvenated like flowers in springtime
