the continuous growth of older adult populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge challenge to prevent costly and negative impacts effects on the population as a whole it is crucial that societies increase their knowledge of promoting good health among older adults to promote good health and a better quality of life in their later years active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age an active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people both young and older adults alike this ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world while celebrating longer life and with more financial security in later life than ever before we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioural responses and through public policy institutional reforms and innovations the challenge is to identify recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity independence and health of people of all ages especially older adults and in the process promote the well being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable the progression of heart disease is associated with changes in the neurohumoral mechanisms that control cardiac function the degree to which this neurohumoral remodeling occurs even before overt signs of cardiac disease become manifest is important for prognosis to determine why some patients experience sudden death while others sustain life in the presence of severely compromised cardiac function the neuronal control of cardiac electrical and mechanical events must be considered starting at the level of individual neurons and building upwards this book describes the synergistic interactions that occur among intrathoracic and cns feedback loops to permit precise control of regional cardiac behavior on this basic science foundation subsequent clinical chapters explore the remodeling that occurs in this system with aging with the evolution of specific cardiac pathologies and with the psychological concomitants of heart disease most importantly these chapters provide unique insights into how specific therapies like beta andrenergic receptor blockade not only affect cardiomyocytes directly but also mitigate the adverse neurohumoral changes that accompany disease processes such as heart failure and essential hypertension the paradigm advanced in this volume is that heart disease is a multifaceted phenomenon involving the interplay of neurohumoral cardiomyocyte and structural elements each of which depends on the other with our cumulative understanding of these interdependent processes new avenues for time appropriate targeted methods of treating heart diseases can be developed subtilisin is the most extensively studied model system for protein engineering the primary motivating factor for the interest in subtilisin is the commercial utility of this class of proteases the subtilisin symposium was the first international meeting to bring together a large number of groups that have focused on the subtilisins and the subtilases the protein superfamily of subtilisin like enzymes the results presented at the symposium are in this way a unique compendium of a broad spectrum of work largely focused on harnessing the potential of site directed mutagenesis to understand and deliberately alter the function of these enzymes toward a desired end this sort of protein engineering has been extremely successful in subtilisin with many such engineered enzymes now widely used in commercial enterprises in this regard the experience derived from subtilisin does represent practical protein engineering it is becoming clear that subtilisin represents a larger class of enzymes the subtilases that include many of the human pro hormone converting enzymes as international collaborative efforts to sequence entire genomes continue we can reasonably expect that additional members of the subtilase class will be encountered whenever interest in a member of this class of enzyme arises the work on subtilisin will serve as a guide to the analysis for what in bacillus fungi and industry is an everyday workhorse enzyme the commonwealth of virginia is currently transitioning from the long used aashto allowable stress design asd specification to aashto s load and resistance factor design lrfd specification the new specification features revised live loads more conservative impact factors a new load distribution method for analysis and a probabilistically based limit state design approach traditional deflection limits have been made optional in the lrfd format the extensive changes in the specification make it unclear as to whether bridges designed using the lrfd specification will be more or less flexible than those designed using the asd specification a series of bridges were designed using both asd and lrfd formats to investigate what if any significant changes in bridge flexibility might be encountered and whether deflection limits are more or less likely to be violated with the lrfd format based upon the design of six single span bridges with varying spans and numbers of girders and a partial design of a three span continuous bridge it was concluded that the lrfd designs tend to be lighter and more economical in general and also tend to be more flexible than asd designs of the same bridge the weight savings appears to be more pronounced on single span bridges than on multiple span bridges because of the greater significance of local and lateral stability concerns in the finished bridges for multi span bridges
